

When the pirates had gone the monkeys started to chatter excitedly. They grabbed the stone banana and quickly scampered off with it. They headed towards the temple where they found the stone statue of the monkey. (Remember the monkey statue with the hand that seemed as if it should be clasping something?) Carefully, they placed the stone banana into the statue's hand. It was like having the combination for a safe. Immediately, there was a grinding noise and a secret door opened in the stone wall. Beyond the secret door was a chamber full of gold and treasure and jewels. If only the pirates had followed the monkeys! If only Captain Starling had remembered that strange tattoo of the monkey on the pirate's arm it might have been a very different ending!
